BONA-FIDE CIRCULATION. A reference to the statement below will show that the circulation sworn to is a bona fide one,

It is easily possible for a newspaper with an elastic conscience to swell its legitimate circulation enormously, in order to deceive advertisers, by sending out thousands of papers to news stands, which are returnable, and which are in fact returned, but nevertheless are included in what purports to be an honest statement of circulation.

Intelligent advertisers, however, judge by results, and bogus circulation don't give them.

The family circulation of The Times is many thousands in excess of any other Washington paper and is believed to be fully two times that of its afternoon contemporary.

A New Jersey newspaper expresses syn pathy with Representative Pitney because be, it says, "incurred some ill will in the District of Columbia at the close of the Congressional session by making a hard figlit in committee against Senate amend ments which increased the appropriations for District purposes." The paper then goes on prating about "Was tonian greed," "the government's gencrosity," and "necessity for economy in government expenditures." and finally ommends Mr. Pitney, all of which shows that it is fully as ignorant as he regarding the relations and obligations of the United States to the District. The difference between them, bowever, is this: That while a provincial paper may be excus for its ignorance upon this point, Pitney's is inexcusable, for it was his business as a Representative in Congress to properly

In fact, Pitney belongs to a class Congressmen who welcome anything and everything that affords them an opportunity to make a little cheap capital for home consumption by posing before No matter how the end may be reached they allow no chance to pass. For this class the appropriations for the District furnish a most welcome target against which to direct their pseudoshafts. They are men of small wit and intellect, and whether the United States is bound by equity or contract, or toth, to meet certain obligations and appropriate eertain moneys, makes not the slightest impression upon their mentality. Pitrey is as good a specimen of this class as any, except that his argument against the appropriations for local purposes were, if anything, even more absurd and dema gogical than those of his consorts.

Washingtonian greed" consists in makng estimates and demands for expenditures which are met by the taxes paid by the property owners and bona fide residents of the District. The government's gencrosity is best expressed by the figure 0. The government's obligations, however, amount to just one-half of the sum required for the support of the District government. In other words, the United States, by act of Congress, agreed to pay dollar for dollar what the people of the District pay to defray the local expenses. This was not un act of generosity, but simply of equity, because the United States' property in the District is more than as much again in value as that owned by private citizens. "The necessity for economy in government expenditures" has nothing in the world to do with the District appropriations. Congress may be as economical as it pleases with its appropriations for the rest of the country, but it is bound by contractthough sometimes it ignores even such an obligation -to pay its one-half of District government expenditures.

His district will confer an immense favor on the people of this city by sending omeone besides Pitney to the House of depresentatives.

HANA'S TROCHA Major McKinley's and the Republican sarty's boss has caused it to be known hat "we are going to make the tariff the dominant issue. It has never been subordinated to sound money, by me, and t never will be." And what Marcus Aurelius Banna says "goes." This declaration shows the born commander it doesn't matter to him bow the other fellow is going to fight. He lays down the line of fortifications from behind which he will fire his guns, and if the other fellows choose to stay on the other side and waste their ammunition there, it is none of Mark Hanna's funeral by the large majority for which he hopes next November. The tariff is his issue, and if the other fellows want to talk money, why The Washington Times for the week let them talk, and be what Vanderbilt said the public might be. Of course, Mr. Banna's course would be committed the blunder of their life at St. Louis by laying so much stress upon the money plank, and by drawing the line so sharply that they invited attack along that and none other. They will find t difficult now to side track the financial for the tariff issue. They have thrown down the gage of battle which, without a doubt, the Democratic convention will pick up. If all indications do not deceive hey will get a silver Roland for their gold Oliver. If they stay on their side of Mr. Hanna's tariff trochs, they will be charged with cowardice by the enemy. And that would be a pretty bow-de-do for a brand new commander-in-chief of

M. Aurelius Banna's dimensions. Mr. Hanna deserves credit for the acumen which leads him to prefer the tariff issue to the financial, but having said A he must now say, B. The trocha plan will hardly

AFTER THE CHIEFS.

The Transvarl government is not yet satisfied. Dr. Jameson and his raiders have been indicted in Lendon; the leader of the Johannesburg Reform Committee have been punished, but Cecil Rhodes, the king bee of the whole outfit, has so far gone "unwhipt of justice." Now the Boers are getting after him, and they not only demand his trial, but they want the powers of the chartered South Africa Company to be effectually crushed. They do not propose to tolerate a semi-responsible, hostile force in their neighborhood, but prefer to have Great Britain take hold of the government and rights of the territory now controlled by the company and assume the full responsibility for all acts. They may not, perhaps, feel more secure against encroach and annoyance, but there will be at least some authority that can be held to account for such wrongs as it may commit.

Ample evidence of the complicity of Rhodes in the Jameson raid Is in the hands of the Boers, and they intend to make the best possible use of it. Mr Chamberlain is to be placed in full knowledge of the character of the proof, and it will trouble him to find an excuse for not acting upon it. In view of the admir able course of the Boer government in this matter from beginning to end, it is difficult to see what else the colonia office can do than to accede to the re quest for the examination, indictment, nd trial of Cecil Rhodes. It will be a bitter pill for John Bull to swallow, but he will have to do it.

was almost unanimously indersed by the Democrats of Washington yesterday, the one which indicated that they must "get together." There hasn't been such a getting together of Democratic in these parts for a good mainy years in one spot as that which was to be seen yesterday on the hill at River View.

It was essentially Campbell's day, a new one which has been put in the calendar by President Hosford, of the Interstate Democratic Association, which association is entitled largely to the credit for the magnificent rally to hear fired the first gun of the national Democratic campaign by the first Democrat in late years who carried the Buckeye State with a Western war whoop.

This occasion was intended to show Gov. Campbell something of the quality and quantity of the hospitality of people whose hands have been itiliating for twenty years to get hold of a ballet and put it in a box. Gov. Campbell himself acknowledged the seccess of the effort when he said that the multitude of men, women, children and fat Jeffersonian babies in arms that greeted him in and around the pavilion at River View, reminded him of an old time Ohio campaign neeting. The crowd liked that and it hurrahed for Campbell, the Democratic party and Dominic Murphy.

It seemed to be generally understood

Murphy.

It seemed to be generally understood that Gov. Campbell badn't come all the way from Ohio just to take an outing on the Potemac and see the fireworks, after one of the most elegant dinners of after one of the most elegant dinners of the season, although there are about 40,000 people in Ohio who would have finde the trip under those circumstances alone. It was clearly the feeling that the occasion was one on which the Democratic party of this vicinity was to declare its bellig-greency and to fake a short at the McKinley. erency and to take a shot at the McKinley

DEMOCRATS ALL THERE

DEMOCRATS ALL THERE.

Not fewer than three thousand people went down the river to help Gov. Campbell make his speech, at least he said so later on, and appeared to enjoy the invaluable assistance. A big crowd went down at 10 and another crowd at 2. The biggest crowd boarded the Pentz at 6:20, when the inspectors called a hait on the loading and stepped it at 1:200. Then immediately the Randall was hauled altogside, and it took down probably, about 200 who had been left on the wharf and were saidly disappointed when they saw the Pentz steam away with the Fifth Regiment Band blowing "Dixle" sky high. The Randall, however, came to, the rescue, and the whole party get to the grounds about 7:20 o'clock.

There were, besides two other vessels at the service of the special guests of the Interstate Denocratic Association. One of these was Hon.C. G. Conn's steaminment Rex, which hid been tendered to Gov. Campbell for the trip. This was boarded by him at hair past 5 o'clock, together with Mr. Benedlet Philip Printer; James L. Norris, William Dickson, Laurence Gardner, Hon. T. Sighto Parrow, of the Treasury Department; Hon. Dominic I. Murphy, Commissioner of Pensions; H. L. Biscoe, and others.

The other vessel was the launch Lovie

The other vessel was the launch Lovie Randall, which carried John Boyle, H. P. Buith, E. V. Brookshire, Supt. Kinsey of the new postoffice; A. B. Wells, J. J. Cain, H. L. Biscoe, W. H. Pugh, Hon, Michael Doran, members of the press, and other gentlemen.

CHEERED AT THE WHARF. When Mr. Campbell arrived at the wharf be was cheered and there was an-other cheer as the Rex sped away down, the river loaded with heavy-weight poli-ticians. The Lovie Raudall carried men of the committee on reception and enter-tainment who did themselves proud all through the demonstration. The whole thing was managed with the skill of men who know something about both public and domestic affairs.

The big crowds which the two later stcamers landed were scon in the midst of the assemblage already on the grounds. There was a half hour given for the sports on the grounds, during which, and perhaps a little longer, Gov. Campbell dined at Capt. Randall's residence with the distinguished company with which he had inguished company with which he had nade the voyage.

In the meantime the crowds were whetling their appetites with soft drinks for the big speech. The kand played a good concert on the veranda and the crowds be-gan to fill the pavilion. It was overflowed very scop, only about half of the people being scated.

The pavilion was lavishly decorated with United States and Ohio flags and every man, woman, and child was decorated with a badge, on which the patient, double-humped camel was the particular thing in evidence.

By and by somebody said, "There he is," as Mr. Campbell entered the pavilion and there went up ashout that must have stirred things alive and dead over at Mount Vernon. It was undoubtedly a shouting crowd and

Campbell in the name of the Democrats of Texas and closed his remarks in a storm with thunder and lightuing of applause by pleuging Mr. Campbell 25t., 000 Democratic majority from Texas, or thereabouts.

When things had cooled down enough feather chairman to handle, Mr. D. W. Gall, vice president of the Interstate Democratic Association, arose and called the enthusiasm to order. He regretted the absence of President Hosford, but read from him a telegram whose sentiments were cheered vociferously from time to time. MR. CAMPBELL INTRODUCED. MR. CAMPBELL INTRODUCED.
Commissioner Murphy then assumed charge of the meeting, making a brief introductory speech, in which he scored a point when he said that he would impress on the Democracy of the nation especially the idea of "unfailing faith in the cause of Democracy, unawerving fidelity until the battle had been lost or won." There may be, he said, gold men and silver men, men of all shades of sentiment and policy among the Democracy, but when the convention shall have spoken there should be neither Gestila nor Greek, all should unite and present the front of pure, unadulterated Democracy. Mr. Murphy then reserved in high terms of praise to Mr. Campbell, whom he introduced, after eulogistag him as a gestierous and a politician.

Campbell stood up; and it stood up when Mr. Campbell broke loose. He was kept trying to speak for nearly three minutes while the assemblage was cheering and hurrahing for everything in sight.

Eventually he began: "Mr. President, gentlemen of the Interstate Democratic Association, friends and fellow-citizens." Then there was another ovation, in which all manner of slogaus were sung out, the last heard being that of a man with the voice of a bincksmith's bellows, who cried: "Oh, he's all right."

"Yes, boys, I'm all right," continued Mr. Campbell. "The only trouble with me is that I am a little bewildered. When I accepted this invitation, I thought I was doing a Christian duty."

nuch of my speech is entirely extempora Governor Campbell, after referring to he late fashion of silence in Ohio on the other political side, referred to his manu script, which he followed closely, except every now and then, he would interpolate some things suggested by the remarks of the crowd or the occasion.

HIS ESTIMATE OF M'KINLEY. very strong part of it was the estiof McKinley by other public men than himself, among which estimates he read that of Chandler and Chandler's use of an editorial of The Times in that connection hich the Senator read in the Senate. There were some gold men, of course, in the crowd and at one time they interrupted the speech with cries and other obstructive tactics, all, however, in perfect good humor. A man near the reporters' table said that these objections were led by ex-Congressman Turner. This occurred at that part of the speech in which Mr. Campbell referred to the money question, his position on that being similar to what was printed from him in yesterday's Evening Times.

When he read that sentence there were cries of: There were some gold men, of course, in

"No straddle, no straddle; are you for 16 to 1; out with it Campbell," and other to 1; out with it Campbell," and other such interruptions.

Mr. Campbell waited till it was all over and said quietly.

"There is nothing in the world that makes a speech go better than everybody helping a little; but in order that there may be no misunderstanding as to what I have said I will read that sentence all over again." This was done and there were no further interruptions. Mr. Campbell closed with the cheering of whole mass regardless of straddle or no straddle.

The following is a syropsis of the more striking of his utterances:

GOV. CAMPBELL'S ADDRESS.

GOV. CAMPBELL'S ADDRESS. After a brief complimentary introduc tion Gov. Campbell s

"It has become all too common in these latter days for gentlemen connected with the Federal government to forget, or disregard, their legitimate obligations to the political party which entrusted them with power. Therefore, to one who comes from the wild and breezy West, where a endy to step out before the world-even in them.

"It would be far from truth or patriotism to despise, oppose, or aneer at a justly-founded and properly-administered civil service, but for that perverted form, which eucourages or permits men to ignore or renounce political allegiance or activity, there should be nothing but condemnation.

" " " Only through the clash of contemplar parties can come salptary na-motto of the Interstate Democratic As I city in thirty-four minutes sociation. "The Democratic party, its I fut night, which was lig platform, whatever it is; its candidates, whoever they may be."

He recalled the history of the Democratic party from the year 1860, when, with two-thirds of the voters of the country in its ranks, it split and wentto a defeat that kept it out of power for twenty-four years.

CONFRONTED BY A CRISIS. "Another crisis," he said, "now confro Democracy. They are discordant and beiligerent over an economic question that must soon be settled. The national con-must soon be settled. The national convention draws near and it is frought with momentous possibilities.

"Of the delegates who will assemble the conservatism of the majority and the fidelity of the minority alone can prevent a rupture, more or less open, and avert a disaster beyond reparation. If a sunging and lasting defeat was to be avoided in November, the majority at Chicago must concede and conclinate while the minority must yield and concur. "If sagacious, harmonious and brotherly counsels shall not prevail," he exclaimed, "we go to a defeat like that of 1850, the result of out own stubbornness."

Gov. Campbell then quotes the recent utterances of President Chauncey P. Black of the Democratic National League, coun-seling against disruption over the silver question and said the words express the seatiment of every Democrat who thinks his party is of more consequence to the ntry and humanity than are any man's or ambitio

IN THE ROLE OF PROPHET. He then drew a picture of what would follow Democratic disintegration at Chi-cago. Their political foes would enter upon a long lease of power reeking with that corruption which has always char-acterized Republican sway. The South would be harried with force bills and discriminating election laws to count the black vote for Republicans whether so cast or not. Some of the States would again be reduced to mere black satrapies,

The "fat-frying" policy would be agai "that the Republican party is any better or purer today than when it was buried from power by an indignant and outraged Has there ever been in its history such open, extra vagant and unblusbing expenditure of money, continued for eighteen months to effect a Presidential nomina-tion? Have not the real heads of the party—'ts intellectual leaders—been over-come and destroyed by the brutal use of protected wealth unaccompanied by any deserving factor? It is not agreeable to recall, nor pleasant to contemplate; but a decent regard for truth compels it to be recorded that no such flagrant sale of great office has been made in the open market since the Praestorian Guards bargained away the Roman empire.

"The late St. Louis convention will go down to history as a fit monument to mark the decadence and coming downful of the Republican party. Contrast the absolute control of that body by an overbearing boss of the offensive type, with the conventions that assembled in the earlier and better days of the

MAKE CHICAGO A CONTRAST. "Let us, at Chicago, make the contrast as great as possible for this year's patriotic platform, and an unbought candidate will surely win. And why should we not win? Not the South, which has been ground once and again under the iron heel of carpet bag government; not the West which has, by virtue of Republican domina-tion, become a vassal to the protected East; not the farmer, who high tariff and discriminating money laws have reduced to a hewer of wood, and drawer of water' for his more fortunate neighbors; not will for his more fortunate neighbors; not wil it be labor that opposes us, for, in the city of Cleveland, and all along the great lakes, clear up to Duluth, the 'tin bucket brigade' stands awaiting the striking of the clock stance awaiting the striking of the clock on election morn that they may 'even up' their old scores, and just grievance agaist the 'enly Republican boss' that unrelent-ing foe of organized labor who, if his party were to succeed, would be the power be-hind the throne; aye, would be the throne itself."

THEN CAME THE FIREWORKS. After the speech there was a fine dis-play of fire works from the bioft, which was viewed by a big crowd which had already gathered on the Pentz for the return trip.
Mr. Campbell shortly afterward came down the walk and boarded the Rex. on which, with Mr. Cons and other guests of the association, he made the trip to the city in thirty-four minutes. It was a beautiful micht, which was theired by a moos
